

GKD: MahaNakhon – Bangkok's new icon

Parking garage cladding made of metal mesh as a discreet companion

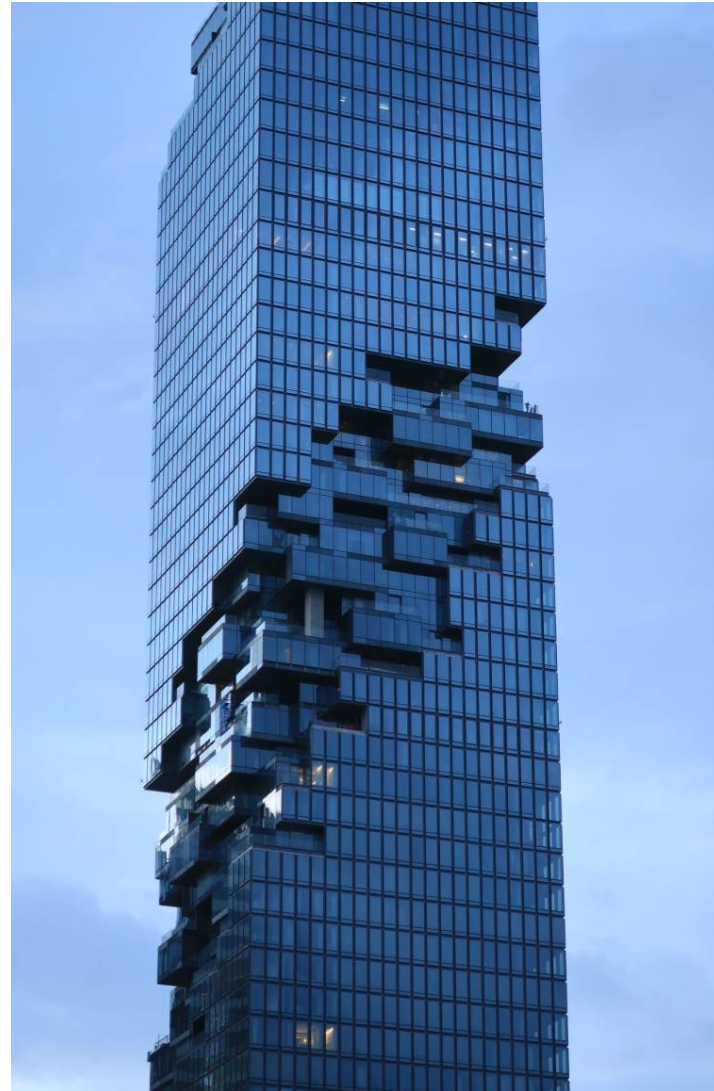

WORLD WIDE WEAVE

Picture 1: The German architect Ole Scheeren created Bangkok's new landmark in the form of the 314-meter high MahaNakhon.

Picture 2: In order to adapt the parking tower's appearance to the luxurious overall ambience, the shimmering PC-Sambesi made of stainless steel mesh from GKD was chosen for the cladding.

Picture 3: The MahaNakhon's character as a new icon of the city is due to the staggered glass balconies and terraces, which give the giant the feel of an incomplete building with a vertical twist.

GKD: MahaNakhon – Bangkok's new icon

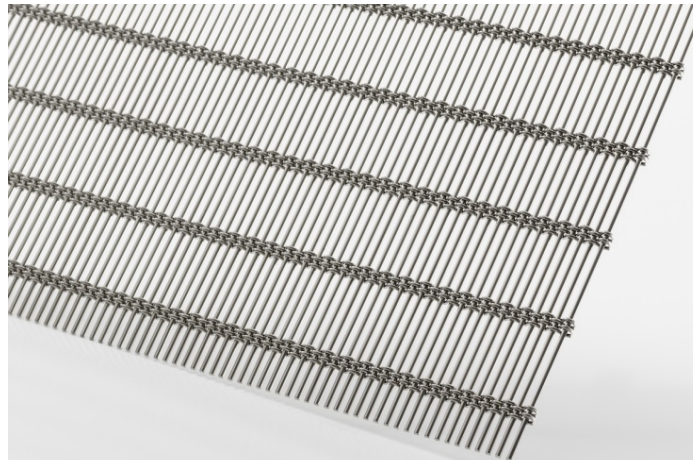

Parking garage cladding made of metal mesh as a discreet companion

WORLD WIDE WEAVE

Picture 4: A parking tower rises behind the MahaNakhon, offering space for almost 900 cars over 10,400 square meters with an automated parking and retrieval system.

Picture 5: The extraordinary aesthetics of the metal mesh as well as the reliable fall guard protection were crucial factors behind the decision of using PC-Sambesi by GKD.
